Employee Handbook

Introduction

This Handbook provides you with the general information you are likely to need in relation to your employment with TwoTwenty. It gives an overview of the terms and conditions under which you are employed and outlines what you can expect from us as your employer. You are expected to read and understand this handbook as part of your introduction to your employment with TwoTwenty. It is also intended to be a useful reference throughout your time with the company.

Our Handbook is not intended to cover every situation or to explain everything about your employment and it's not a replacement for face-to-face communication. If you have any questions about this document, your job, or any other job-related issue, we invite you to speak with your Line Manager or one of the Senior Management team.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish you a happy and successful future with TwoTwenty Ltd.

Scott Peden, Managing Director

1. Starting with TwoTwenty

About TwoTwenty

At TwoTwenty, we know staircases can be a real headache for builders and merchants. They're one of the most complex internal elements of a house and getting them right can be a time-consuming and stressful process. So back in 2004, our co-founder Ali Wright set out to give builders and merchants an easy, hassle-free way to get stairs.

We started TwoTwenty with a very clear vision, we didn't want to be just another staircase manufacturer; we wanted to give our customers a service whereby they could off-load the entire process to us. We work closely with the builder to make sure we deliver exactly what they need. But ultimately the responsibility for getting the stairs right is on us, not them.

That was Ali's vision back then and it's still our core value today. It's what we're famous for, and it's why many of our customers won't order stairs from anyone else. Since 2004 we've supplied stairs to small house builders at thousands of sites across the UK. We've also become a trusted supplier to all the UK's top 10 builders' merchants.

In the last couple of years, we've won major industry awards, including Best Interior Product at the House builder Product Awards, and the Innovation award at the EEF Future Manufacturing Awards. What's more, we've committed to growing our business to meet the needs of our customers. We now have two large manufacturing sites in England and a team of 10 technical sales experts located across the country.

TwoTwenty has grown every single year since 2004, We've increased our customer base, added to our product range, expanded our geographic coverage and moved into bigger premises, all while holding our pricing structure. We now manufacture more than 5,000 flights each year.

Read our case studies and testimonials to see why our customers love working with us.

Our company objectives are to:

- Strive to meet and surpass our customers' requirements at all times with the highest standards of professionalism and integrity
- Support and train our employees so that they become increasingly competent and motivated in the fulfilment of their roles and expectations
- Provide unrivalled levels of customer service.
- Continually invest in the development of the business infrastructure and to maintain the highest standards of equipment compatible with our means
- Be proactive in our approach to Health and Safety to ensure a safe working environment for our employees and visitors
- Take a socially responsible attitude to our neighbours and others in the areas in which we operate
- Be environmentally responsible, both in care of the sites that we operate, and in the sourcing and supply of our materials.

Your Induction

TwoTwenty believes its employees are its greatest asset and recognises its responsibility to ensure they are afforded appropriate development throughout their employment. This development begins at the Induction stage when a new employee joins.

Our aim is to support and develop you in your role so that you feel confident to undertake the responsibilities placed upon you and ultimately can contribute to the success of the company.

Induction will be spread over your first three months with reviews throughout. The content and duration of your induction programme will be dependent on the scope and complexity of your job; your manager will outline this in detail to you on your first day with us.

Principle Statement of Employment

As an employee of TwoTwenty you will have received a Principle Statement of Employment. This document sets out your employment terms and conditions as they relate to your post. If you have not received this, you will receive this on before your first day of employment.

Further detailed policies and procedures which may not be mentioned as part of this document, but which still form part of your conditions of employment with us can be accessed through your line manager. This handbook also summarises the main terms of your employment.

TwoTwenty reserves the right to change its terms & conditions and employment policies from time to time. You will be notified at the earliest opportunity of these changes by way of general notice to all employees affected by the change. Where a contractual change in your terms and conditions of employment results in a change to your written statement of employment, we will give you a written statement of the change at the earliest opportunity.

Probation Period

All new employees are subject to a probationary period of 6 months. Reviews will take place with your manager throughout your induction. During your probationary period you will be given appropriate support to help you reach the required standards. Your appointment will be confirmed on satisfactory completion of the probationary period. Extension of the probationary period may be granted if you have not met TwoTwenty's expectations, but failure to do so could result in termination of your employment.

Attendance at Work

TwoTwenty values good attendance at work and is committed to improving the general wellbeing of its employees to achieve this. If you are unwell or unable to attend work you must follow the Notification of Absence procedure outlined below.

i) Notification of Absence

- Notify your line manager by telephone (not text) one hour before your normal start time or as soon thereafter as possible on the first day of absence, if possible indicating a date of return
- Notification should be made by you personally unless impossible due to the nature of the illness where you should arrange for someone else to call on your behalf
- Maintain regular contact with your line manager during your absence and advise further when you expect to return to work
- If your absence is longer than 7 calendar days, you need to obtain a doctors certificate and forward this to your line manager
- Further certificates must be at regular intervals thereafter and must cover the total period of absence.

Failure to follow the Notification of Absence procedure may result in disciplinary action being taken against you and may result in sick pay not being paid.

Any employee who has been absent due to sickness and is found not to have been genuinely ill will be subject to disciplinary action, which could include dismissal.

At any time during your absence TwoTwenty may require your permission to communicate with your doctor and retains the right to arrange an examination by a company appointed doctor, at no expense to yourself.

Related policy: 'Sickness Absence' - available from your Manager

ii) Sickness Payments

Payment during sickness leave is dependent upon you following the above 'Notification of Absence' procedures. We will pay statutory sick pay according to current legislation, but not normally over this level. For more details please refer to Handbook section 3 'Pay and Benefits'.

Hours of Work

Your hours and working pattern are specified in your Statement of Employment. Your working hours are determined by the operational needs of the area in which you work.

Office operating times:

Monday to Thursday: 7.30am – 5pm

Friday: 7.30am – 4.30pm

Factory operating times:

Monday to Thursday: 7am – 3.30pm

Friday: 7am – 2.30pm

A daily unpaid break of 30 minutes must be taken if you work more than 6 hours daily.

From time to time it may be necessary to work additional hours. Payment for such time will be in accordance with the Company's overtime policy. Overtime will not be applied until you have worked your contracted hours of work for that week.

TwoTwenty reserves the right to vary your hours and pattern of working following consultation with you. Persistent poor time-keeping means that colleagues are put under pressure to cover your duties. This is not acceptable and may be treated as misconduct under the Company's disciplinary procedure.

Flexible Working

TwoTwenty is committed to providing equality of opportunity in employment and to developing work practices and policies that support work-life balance. Our Flexible Working Policy gives eligible employees an opportunity to request a change to their working pattern in accordance with the statutory right to request flexible working (a 'statutory request').

For more information and to check your eligibility, please refer to TwoTwenty's 'Flexible Working Policy' or speak to your Manager.

It is the organisation's policy to encourage open discussion with employees. If you think you may benefit from flexible working, please contact the Managing Director to arrange an informal discussion to talk about the options.

Related policy: 'Flexible Working' - available from your Manager

Security

TwoTwenty retains the right to undertake staff searches to maintain security. If you are asked, it does not necessarily mean that you are under suspicion.

The Company reserves the right to inspect and search vehicles, equipment, documents, bags, purses, briefcases, packages and other containers, as well as persons entering or leaving the Company's premises for any prohibited items and property of the Company's.

If you are subjected to a search you have the right to be accompanied by a colleague. A refusal to comply with the Company search procedure may be subject to the disciplinary procedure.

Related policy: 'Staff Search' - available from your Manager

Conflict of Interest

You should not, directly or indirectly, engage in, or have any interest, financial or otherwise, in any other business enterprise which interferes or is likely to interfere with your independent exercise of judgement in TwoTwenty's best interest.

Generally, a conflict of interests exists when an employee is involved in an activity:

- which provides products or services directly to, or purchase products or services from TwoTwenty
- which uses the Company's name or its professional relationships to obtain preferential rates or treatment for something not related to TwoTwenty
- which subjects a TwoTwenty employee(s) to unreasonable time demands that prevent the employee(s) from devoting proper attention to his or her responsibilities to TwoTwenty
- which is operated in a manner which will reflect adversely on TwoTwenty.

Should you be in doubt as to whether an activity involves a conflict, you should discuss the situation with your manager.

Secondary Employment

An employee may hold a job with another company as long as they satisfactorily perform their job responsibilities with TwoTwenty. All employees will be judged by the same performance standards and will be subject to TwoTwenty's scheduling demands, regardless of any existing outside work requirements.

If the Company determines that an employee's outside work interferes with performance or the ability to meet the requirements of TwoTwenty, the employee may be asked to terminate the outside employment if he or she wishes to remain with TwoTwenty.

Outside employment will present a conflict of interest if it has an adverse impact on TwoTwenty.

Standards of Performance and Behaviour at Work

i) Appearance

You are expected to dress appropriately at all times in relation to your role, wearing the TwoTwenty branded workwear that has been provided; it is your responsibility to ensure that this is clean and presentable. You must also ensure that your personal hygiene and grooming are properly attended to prior to presenting yourself at work.

The Company has a simple 'Dress Code and Appearance Policy' designed to help us all provide a consistent professional appearance to our customers and colleagues. The purpose is to maintain a positive appearance and not to offend customers, clients, or colleagues.

Related policy: 'Appearance and Dress Code' - available from your Manager

ii) Company Premises

Authorised personnel will be issued with a PIN code allowing you access to your workplace. Accidental or unauthorised disclosure of the code must be reported immediately to your line manager.

You must not bring any unauthorised person on to TwoTwenty property without prior agreement from your line manager, unless you are authorised to do so as part of your job. In these circumstances you are responsible for ensuring that your visitors are appropriately monitored during their stay, and that they do not access areas or company property inappropriately.

You must not remove TwoTwenty property from the company's premises unless prior authority from your line manager has been given.

iii) Personal Property

Any personal property such as jewellery, cash, credit cards, clothes, cars, vehicles etc. left on TwoTwenty premises is done so entirely at your own risk. You are strongly advised not to leave any valuables unattended, either on our premises, our vehicles or in your own vehicle. TwoTwenty does not accept liability for loss or damage to any personal property whatsoever.

If you lose or find property on the company's premises you should report it immediately to your line manager.

iv) Telephones & Correspondence

Company telephones are primarily for business use. TwoTwenty permits a reasonable level of personal use of these facilities providing it does not interfere with your workload or disrupt colleagues. Company postal facilities are not to be used for personal use. Abuse of these facilities will be considered a potential disciplinary matter.

v) Smoking and Substances at Work

Legislation makes it illegal to smoke in enclosed public spaces. Smoking, including e-cigarettes, is therefore strictly prohibited on all TwoTwenty premises, including entrances, exits and vehicles.

Outside areas have been identified for those who wish to smoke during their break-time.

vi) Alcohol and Drugs

Bringing alcohol or any unlawful drugs to the workplace, and / or consuming them on TwoTwenty's premises is strictly prohibited, both during work time or during a period prior to work where the effects carry over to the workplace. Any such instances will be dealt with under the disciplinary procedure and may lead to your summary dismissal.

Related policy: 'Alcohol and Drugs' - available from your Manager

vii) Confidentiality

It is a condition of your employment that you have a duty of confidentiality with regards to TwoTwenty.

During your employment you may find yourself in possession of sensitive information, the disclosure of which could be construed as a breach of confidentiality. It is a condition of your employment that you have a duty of confidentiality to the Company, and you must not discuss any Company sensitive or confidential matter whatsoever with any outside organisation including the media.

Any such breach of confidentiality would be deemed as gross misconduct except as otherwise provided or as permitted by any current legislation (e.g. the UK Public Interest Disclosure Act 1998) and could lead to your dismissal.

viii) Computer, email and Internet use

You may use email and the Internet for TwoTwenty purposes. Email services and Internet browsing should be used in a responsible manner and should not adversely impact on work performance.

TwoTwenty reserves the right to monitor incoming and outgoing emails, and block access to certain sites it feels are unsuitable to be viewed within a work environment or potentially disruptive to your role.

Only software packages properly authorised and installed by the Company may be used on Company equipment, you must therefore not load any unauthorised software on to Company computers.

If you have a Company email address, this is provided for responsible use on Company business and should not be used in any other way.

You must not make reference to the Company or its services or represent yourself on behalf of the Company on social media without formal permission from the Company to do so.

All staff must make themselves familiar with the Company's Internet & Email Policy available from your manager.

Related policy: 'Email and Internet Use' - available from your Manager

ix) Receipt of Gifts

Your working relationships may bring you into contact with outside organisations where it is normal business practice or social convention to offer hospitality, and sometimes gifts. Offers of this kind to you or your family can place you in a difficult position. Therefore, no employee or any member of his or her immediate family should accept from a supplier, customer or other person doing business with TwoTwenty, payments of money under any circumstances, or special considerations, such as discounts or gifts of materials, equipment, services, facilities or anything else of value unless:

- They are in each instance of a very minor nature usually associated with accepted business practice.
- They do not improperly interfere with your independence of judgement or action in the performance of your employment.

In every circumstance where a gift is offered, the advice of your manager must be sought.

x) Bribery and other Corrupt Behaviour

In line with the Bribery Act (2010), a bribe is defined as: giving someone a financial or other advantage to encourage that person to perform their functions or activities improperly or to reward that person for having already done so.

If you bribe (or attempt to bribe) another person, intending either to obtain or retain business for the company, or to obtain or retain an advantage in the conduct of the company's business this will be considered gross misconduct. Similarly accepting or allowing another person to accept a bribe will be considered gross misconduct. In these circumstances you will be subject to formal investigation under the Company's disciplinary procedures, and disciplinary action up to and including dismissal may be applied.

Data Protection and Access to Information

TwoTwenty will comply with all statutory requirements of Data Protection law including the requirements of the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR). Any personal or sensitive information on an individual which the Company holds is covered by this legislation. This includes emails too. Employees can request access to the information held on them by the Company. All requests by employees to gain access to such records should be made in writing.

If you are a user of customer or employee information you need to be sure that you are not breaching any data protection rules when you store or use information and when you write and send emails. This could include but is not limited to:

- Using data which has not been kept up-to-date
- Passing on or processing personal information about an individual without their consent
- Careless storage confidential information

- Keeping personal information longer than necessary.
- Sending personal information outside the country.

If any breach of data protection rules is discovered such as the leaking or hacking of personal or sensitive data, this should be reported immediately to your line manager, and any immediate action should be taken to close down such leaks. Your line manager will ensure this is properly investigated and the appropriate reporting actions taken if necessary.

Personal Information for Employment Purposes

It is important that our records are correct, as inaccurate or out of date information may affect your salary or cause difficulties in situations where contact is required for emergencies. You must notify your Manager immediately of all changes in the following personal information:

- Name
- Home address
- Telephone number
- Bank account details
- Examinations passed/qualifications gained
- Emergency contact
- Driving licence penalties (if you are required to drive on Company business)
- Criminal charge, caution or conviction
- Conflict, or potential conflict of interest

Personal data on employees is held in accordance with General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR).

Staff Discount

You will be able to purchase products made by TwoTwenty and its sister companies at a discounted price. For details contact your Line Manager.

Trade Union Membership

TwoTwenty recognise the rights of individuals to join a trade union and where appropriate to be represented on matters of discipline or grievance.

2. Valuing Equality, Diversity & Dignity at Work

Valuing Equality and Diversity

TwoTwenty is committed to valuing equality and diversity and seeks to provide all employees with the opportunity for employment, career and personal development based on ability, qualifications and suitability for the work as well as their potential to be developed into the job. We believe that people from diverse backgrounds can bring fresh ideas, thinking and approaches which make the way work is undertaken more effective and efficient.

The Company will not tolerate any form of discrimination against any person on grounds of age, disability, gender / gender reassignment, marriage / civil partnership, pregnancy / maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation whether in the field of recruitment, terms and conditions of employment, career progression, training, transfer or dismissal.

It is also the responsibility of all employees in their daily actions, decisions and behaviour to endeavour to promote these concepts, to comply with all relevant legislation and to ensure that they do not discriminate against colleagues, customers, suppliers or any other person associated with the Company.

TwoTwenty recognises the importance of monitoring, reviewing and reporting on its equality and diversity policy and practice and to measure progress in meeting our policy statement.

Related policy; equality and diversity - available from your manager

Dignity at Work

The Company believes that the working environment should at all times be supportive of the dignity and respect of individuals. If a complaint of harassment is brought to the attention of management, it will be investigated promptly, and appropriate action will be taken.

Harassment can be defined as conduct which is unwanted and offensive and affects the dignity of an individual or group of individuals.

If you feel you are being harassed, you are strongly encouraged to seek early advice/support from your manager. If you feel your manager is harassing you, then you should contact his / her immediate manager.

Related policy: 'Harassment and Bullying' - available from your Manager

3. Pay Benefits and Pensions

Salary Arrangements

All staff will be paid monthly, in arrears, directly into a bank or building society account of your choice, on the 27th of each month. If this falls during a weekend or on a public holiday, salaries will be banked on the final working day prior to the 27th.

Part-time employees will be paid on a pro-rata basis based on the hours they work. In all other aspects, their salaries will be paid in accordance with the pay arrangements for full-time employees of the Company.

Deductions from Wages

The Company reserves the right to deduct from an employee's salary, wages, holiday pay, expenses, or any other payments due to the employee any sums owed to the Company, including but not limited to overpayments of salary or expenses, loans, advances, training costs, losses caused by the employee, or any other monies properly due to the Company.

By accepting employment with the Company, the employee expressly authorises the Company to make such deductions in accordance with section 13 of the Employment Rights Act 1996

Your basic pay was outlined in your letter of appointment / statement of terms and conditions. Any subsequent amendments to your basic pay will be notified to you in writing by the Company. In addition to your basic pay TwoTwenty pay each member of staff £169 per month tax free (subject to government guidelines on being a part of an employee owned trust a tax free payment capped at £3600 can be paid per tax year). Each November TwoTwenty offer a service based bonus which equates to 5% per year of service, up to 10 years (max 50%) of your November basic pay, this in most cases will be paid tax free but both bonuses are subject to national insurance contributions

Example

1 Year 5%

2 Year 10%

3 Year 15%

Etc

Each month you will receive a detailed pay slip showing earnings, deductions and net pay.

If any queries arise with regard to pay, or if it looks as if a mistake has been made, speak to your line manager immediately so that they can take appropriate action. Unless agreed otherwise, any pay errors, whether of over or underpayment, will be rectified in the next salary payment.

Appropriate deductions will be made from pay including income tax and National Insurance contributions (NICs), which are subject to each employee's earning level, family status and the number of hours worked.

Overtime

Overtime is defined as all hours worked more than your full time contracted hours, which has the prior explicit approval of your manager. Overtime is payable to posts which have been specifically designated as qualifying for overtime payment. For periods worked between Monday and Saturday inclusively, overtime is payable at time and a half unless otherwise agreed.

Under the Working Time Regulations 1998, unless you agree otherwise, your working time for each 7 days should not exceed an average of 48 hours over a period of 13 weeks. Unless you advise the company in writing to the contrary, it will be assumed that you agree that your hours may exceed these, and the limits in the Working Time Regulations 1998 will not apply. Should you wish to be excluded from this at future time, you should advise your manager.

Shift working

Should the requirements of the business necessitate shift working, the Company will give a reasonable notice period. Your remuneration for this work will be at a level of time and a third.

Short time working

Short time working may be implemented as a temporary measure in the event of a reduction in the workload. The company also reserves the right to lay off employees without pay. The duration of short time working/layoff will normally be negotiated at the time, and with not less than 24 hours notice of any short time will be given by the company.

Income Tax

If there are any changes in your personal circumstances which will affect your tax status, you should notify the Inland Revenue, who will automatically inform the Company of any changes to your tax code. Addresses of local offices and enquiry centres can be found here: <http://www.inlandrevenue.gov.uk/menus/officesmenu.htm>

Business Travel

You will be reimbursed for any expenditure necessarily incurred in order to do your job when working away from your normal place of work. Public Transport and accommodation costs will be reimbursed at actual cost – appropriate receipts must accompany all claims. Mileage rates when travelling by your own private transport are paid in accordance with Government current approved Mileage Allowance Payments (MAPs).

Sickness Pay Provision

Eligible employees are entitled to statutory sick pay (SSP), provided that they follow the Company's 'Notification of Absence Procedure' and evidence requirements.

SSP is paid in accordance with current government guidelines. TwoTwenty offer a discretionary 2 days per annum fully paid (any abuse of this means it can be withdrawn at any time)

Statutory sick pay is payable for up to 28 weeks in any one period of sickness absence, at a weekly rate set by the Government for the relevant tax year. It is paid:

- for the days an employee normally works - called 'qualifying days'
- in the same way as wages, for example on the normal payday, deducting tax and National insurance

TwoTwenty reserves the right to refuse to pay sick pay if it has reasonable cause to think that an employee is not genuinely sick, if it has cause to believe that an employee is abusing the sick pay scheme, if an employee has failed to comply with the notification requirements or has not supplied the appropriate certification. If the sick pay scheme has been abused, disciplinary action may follow.

Payments of sick pay may be terminated, suspended or reduced if an employee fails to notify the Company of relevant facts, or if their absence or continued absence is due to their taking an unwarranted risk (in or out of work), conducting themselves in a way that prejudices their recovery, abusing alcohol or drugs or other substances, or recklessly endangering the health and safety at work of themselves and others.

Pension Scheme

You will be automatically enrolled in the Company Pension scheme, details of which you should have received when you started (if you have not yet received this please speak to your line manager). You may elect to opt out of the scheme if you so wish. Please note that no member of the Company can advise you on whether you should join or not. If you are unsure, you should seek independent financial advice.

4. Leave Arrangements

Annual Leave

Your annual entitlement runs from January 1st to December 31st. You may take your holidays at any time of the year subject to operational requirements and the agreement of your manager. It is our firm intention to shut down between Christmas and New year which must be taken into consideration when calculating your holiday entitlement. Holiday entitlement should be taken within that year and unless prior agreement cannot be paid or carried forward.

Your basic entitlement in a full year is 21 working days. Your entitlement increases to 23 working days after 3 complete years of unbroken service and 25 working days after 5 complete years of unbroken service i.e It changes on January 1st the year following complete service.

- Leave for employees joining after the start of the leave year, accrues at the rate of one twelfth of the annual entitlement for each complete calendar month of service
- Leave for employees who terminate their employment during the leave year is calculated on the same basis. If, however, the annual leave entitlement has been exceeded, a deduction calculated on the same basis will be deducted from the final salary payment.
- Holiday pay in lieu of accrued leave will be paid only on termination of employment and will normally be subject to a maximum of 10 working days.

TwoTwenty also recognises the 8 statutory Bank Holidays in addition to basic annual leave entitlement. These are:

New years day: 1st January	1 day
Easter: Good Friday and Easter Monday	2 days
May day: first Monday in May	1 day
Spring bank holiday: last Monday in May	1 day
Late Summer holiday: Last Monday in August	1 day
Christmas Holiday: Christmas day and Boxing day	2 days

Maternity Leave and Pay

Pregnant employees will be entitled to take 26 weeks' Ordinary Maternity Leave and 26 weeks Additional Maternity Leave, irrespective of their length of service or the number of hours worked each week.

You may not return to work during the two weeks immediately following the birth of your child (four weeks for women who work in factories).

You are free to choose when you would like your maternity leave to start, however, the earliest you can choose to start your maternity leave is during the 11th week before the expected week of your child's birth.

Statutory Maternity leave will be paid in accordance to the government requirements at the time regarding length of service. Payment for this will be at the prevailing government minimum. Your job will need to be filled during your absence. You will be expected to give a full cooperation and assist in the training.

Parallel arrangements are available for the adoption of a child. Please refer to TwoTwenty's 'Maternity, Adoption, Paternity and Parental Leave Policy'.

Related policy: 'Maternity, Adoption, Paternity and Parental Leave' - available from your Manager

Paternity Leave

Statutory Paternity Leave is a maximum of two weeks' leave, following the birth of a child, taken to support the mother or care for the new child. It can be taken as a single week or two consecutive weeks. It cannot be taken as odd days or as two separate weeks.

To qualify you must have worked for the Company for at least 26 weeks by the end of the 15th week before the expected birth week. Statutory Paternity Leave must be taken within 56 days of the birth. If the baby is born earlier than expected, it must be taken within 56 days from the date the baby was due.

Statutory Paternity Pay is paid at a fixed rate per week (determined in legislation) or 90% of average earnings if that is less. It is paid less tax and National Insurance contributions in the normal way.

Parallel arrangements are available for the adoption of a child. Please refer to TwoTwenty's 'Maternity, Adoption, Paternity and Parental Leave Policy'.

Related policy: 'Maternity, Adoption, Paternity and Parental Leave' - available from your Manager

Shared parental leave

Shared Parental Leave converts the remaining weeks of maternity leave, once the two weeks or four weeks compulsory maternity leave period has been taken, to leave which can be shared between the mother and father, spouse or partner.

To be eligible for shared parental leave you must meet the criteria outlined by the Government. Parallel arrangements are available for the adoption of a child. Please refer to TwoTwenty's 'Maternity, Adoption, Paternity and Parental Leave Policy'.

Related policy: 'Maternity, Adoption, Paternity and Parental Leave' - available from your Manager

Parental Leave

Eligible employees can take unpaid parental leave to look after their child's welfare. Your employment rights are protected whilst you are absent. TwoTwenty will manage unpaid parental leave in accordance with current Government information:

<https://www.gov.uk/parental-leave>

Parallel arrangements are available for the adoption of a child.

Time Off for Dependants

You are legally entitled to take a reasonable amount of time off to deal with certain prescribed emergencies involving certain dependants. This leave is called Time Off for Dependants. Time Off for Dependants can be taken, for example, if a dependant falls ill or is injured or if care arrangements break down. A dependant is your child (including adopted child), husband, wife or parent. It also includes someone who lives in your household, and someone who reasonably relies on you, such as an elderly relative. Any time taken off must be necessary and reasonable in the particular circumstances. Time Off for Dependants is not paid.

Bereavement Leave

When an employee experiences the death of an immediate family member or an individual whose relationship is characterised by mutual responsibility and support, employees may take up to 3 days off with pay to attend the funeral or make funeral arrangements. Pay for part-time employees will be on a pro-rata basis if the funeral occurs on a scheduled workday.

For this policy, immediate family members are defined as an employee's spouse, parents, step-parents, sisters, brothers, children, step-children, grandparents, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, or grandchild.

All full-time employees may take up to one day off without pay to attend the funeral of a close, non-family member. This time off will be considered and granted by the employee's manager on a case-by-case basis. Pay for part-time employees will be on a pro-rata basis if the funeral occurs on a scheduled workday.

Parental Bereavement Leave

All employees regardless of length of service are entitled to two weeks bereavement leave in the event any parent loses a child aged under 18; this includes still birth after 24 weeks of pregnancy.

The right applies to the child's parent(s), which includes an adoptive parent, prospective adopter, intended parent under a surrogacy arrangement, a parent "in fact" (someone looking after a child in that person's home for the last four weeks), or that person's partner, but not a paid carer.

Leave can be taken in one block of two weeks or as two separate weeks starting on any day of the week. Leave may be used at any time in the first 56 weeks after a death or stillbirth of a child.

The amount of notice required will depend on the way in which the employee wants to their entitlement to leave, during the first seven weeks, employees need only give notice of intention to take leave before they are due to start work on the first day of leave. From 8-56 weeks leave requires at least a week's notice. Leave can be cancelled or rearranged with the same degree of notice.

We recognise in these circumstances employees will not be in any position to have a detailed discussion. But please inform your line manager and let them know what has happened.

Statutory Parental Bereavement Leave Pay

Pay is available for employees with at least 26 weeks continuous service and normal weekly earnings at least at the lower weekly earnings limit. Pay can start on any day of the week but is not payable during the week in which the employee has done work for the employer. It is paid at the same rate as Statutory Paternity/Shared parental leave pay.

Additional Time Off:

The Company understands the deep impact that death can have on an individual or a family, therefore additional non-paid time off may be granted. Individual employee circumstances may be discussed with the employee's manager to determine whether additional considerations are needed. It is the company's intention to support employees during their times of grief and bereavement.

Jury Service

Should you be required to attend jury service, unpaid leave of absence will be granted and fully supported via current legislation Compensation for loss of earnings and out of pocket expenses should be claimed from the relevant authority. It is your responsibility to give your Manager a copy of the claim form which you should collect from the court that deals with loss of earnings.

5. Health and Safety

TwoTwenty recognises and accepts its responsibility as an employer to maintain so far as is reasonably practicable, the safety and health of its employees, and of other persons who may be affected by its activities.

It is the intention of TwoTwenty Directors and Management that every effort will be made to provide a safe working environment. The insistence that every individual acts in a safe manner is a principle part of the overall strategy. The implementation of disciplinary action to achieve this intent will be imposed on all employees at every level.

It is your duty as an employee not to put at risk either yourself or others by your acts or omissions. You should also ensure that you are familiar with the Company health and safety arrangements. Should you feel concern over any health and safety aspects of your work, this should be brought to the attention of your line manager immediately.

Examples of your responsibility are;

- To report any accident, however minor
- Take reasonable care for the health and safety and hygiene of yourself and anyone else you are in contact with at work, specifically wear the protective clothing provided.
- Know how to carry out all of the emergency procedures, including fire precautions and evacuation procedures.
- Report to your line manager or act upon, as appropriate, any potential hazard you may notice.
- Know where first aid equipment is kept in your area.

Procedure in the event of an accident

An Accident Book is available from your manager and it is the responsibility of each individual employee to report and record any accident involving personal injury. Any accident or near miss occurrence (i.e. no one was injured but the incident had the potential to injure or kill) at work should be reported immediately to your manager.

All employees who are absent from work following an accident must complete a self-certification form, which clearly states the nature and cause of the injury.

First Aid

The Company believes that best practice is to ensure staff have access to a trained First Aider or Appointed Person (someone who can take charge in the event of an accident). Details of these trained staff will be displayed on your local notice board. You should familiarise yourself with names and contact details.

Fire Safety

You should take it upon yourself to ensure you understand what to do in the event of an emergency, how to activate any alarms and know the location of the nearest fire exit and assembly points.

6. Training and Development

TwoTwenty places the highest value on training and development for its employees. We are committed to invest in the training of our people in order to achieve our business objectives. Initial and longer term training needs will be agreed with your manager to enable you to perform your job as effectively as possible. This process will continue as part of your regular performance reviews.

7. Leaving TwoTwenty

Notice Periods

Unless your employment is terminated by agreement, or specified otherwise in your Principal Statement of Terms and Conditions, you or the Company are required to give a period of notice in writing as follows:

Up to 2 years service	-	1 week
Over 2 years service	-	1 month

In circumstances where you receive notice from TwoTwenty, the notice periods after due negotiation will be as follows

Up to 1 year	-	1 week
1 year to 2 years	-	2 weeks
2 years to 3 years	-	3 weeks
3 years to 4 years	-	4 weeks

For every completed year of service an additional week will be given, up to a maximum of 12 weeks.

Your employment may be terminated without notice where dismissal follows disciplinary proceedings for gross misconduct.

Working Notice

In all cases the Company reserves the right to enforce your full notice period. Your full remaining annual leave entitlement should be taken during your notice period in agreement with your line manager. Exceptionally, if this is not possible, your manager may agree to make a payment in lieu of this. If you leave any day other than the last working day of that month, that month will not count for annual leave purposes.

If you resign and are in possession of Company property (including computer files), you should make your manager aware of these, and arrange how they will be handed back to the Company. You remain bound by the confidentiality arrangements outlined in your contract of employment during this period.

In exceptional circumstances, if deemed appropriate and as an alternative to working your notice, the Company reserves the right either to transfer you to other suitable duties during your notice period or to require you to accept payment in lieu of any entitlement to notice.

8. Disciplinary Procedure

TwoTwenty requires all employees to conduct themselves in accordance with its rules and procedures and to perform their work to a satisfactory standard in order to maintain an efficient and successful business. The rules are seen as fair, reasonable and acceptable to all employees, breaches of discipline are therefore expected to be infrequent.

When breaches of discipline do occur, Managers will make every effort to resolve matters through informal discussion and/or formal counselling. Should this fail to bring the desired improvement or where the misconduct or performance is deemed serious, the formal disciplinary procedure may be invoked. The key purpose of any disciplinary action will be to correct any shortcomings on conduct or performance.

At every stage of the disciplinary procedure the employee will be informed of the basis of the problem and will be given the opportunity to state their case before any decision is made. Every individual also has the right to representation at any point during the disciplinary process.

Formal Disciplinary Action

Formal disciplinary action may be appropriate where an employee has not responded to previous informal discussions or where the misconduct is too serious to be dealt with informally.

The disciplinary procedure usually addresses one of two possible aspects of an employee's behaviours. These are:

1. Performance or Capability: When an employee's poor performance relates to their inability to perform the task for which they have been employed, these are problems that relate to an employee's skill, aptitude, health or any physical or mental quality.

2. Misconduct: Where employees do not follow company or legislative procedures or who act in other unacceptable ways. Conduct issues may be deemed to be so serious that they may result in instant dismissal (Gross Misconduct).

TwoTwenty management will make the distinction between whether a problem is performance/capability or a conduct related.

When dealing with a performance issue, you will progress through each stage of the disciplinary procedure, starting with counseling before moving on to the formal procedures (e.g. Formal Verbal Warning, Written Warning, Final Written Warning etc) until the employee's performance improves or the procedure is concluded.

When dealing with poor conduct, the disciplinary procedure may be invoked at any stage depending on how serious the issue is.

The 4 stage Disciplinary Procedure is as follows:

1. Formal verbal warning: If despite informal discussions, conduct or performance does not meet acceptable standards or if conduct is deemed serious enough, you will normally be given a formal verbal warning. You will be advised of the reason for the warning, that it is the first stage of the disciplinary and of your right to appeal. The manager will confirm the verbal warning in writing in the form of a file note, which will be retained on the your personal file. This warning will usually lapse after 12 months, subject to satisfactory conduct and / or performance being maintained.

2. Written warning: if there is no improvement in standards of performance or if a further breach of misconduct occurs, or if one act of misconduct is deemed serious enough, a written warning will be given. The manager will issue the warning, which will give details of the breach of performance or conduct, the improvement required and the timescales for improvement where appropriate. You will be advised of your right to appeal against the decision. This warning will usually lapse after 24 months, subject to satisfactory conduct and / or performance being maintained. .

3. Final written warning: If there is still a failure to improve standards of performance or there are further act(s) of misconduct or a breach of a different nature occurs or if one act of misconduct is deemed serious enough, then a final written warning will be given. The warning will give details of the breach of performance or conduct, will warn that dismissal may result if there is not satisfactory improvement within given timescales or if there is repeated misconduct and will advise of their right to appeal. This warning will usually lapse after 12 months, subject to satisfactory conduct and / or performance being maintained.

4. Dismissal: If performance is still unsatisfactory or further misconduct occurs of the same or different nature or the company believes that the employee may be dismissed. You will be provided as soon as is reasonably practicable with a letter confirming the reasons for the dismissal, the date on which their employment will terminate, any payments to which you may be entitled and your right of appeal.

Gross Misconduct

If the company believes that an employee has committed an offence of gross misconduct the normal consequence will be dismissal. The following list which is not exhaustive provides examples of offences that are normally regarded as gross misconduct and can result in dismissal:

- Deliberate failure to comply with the published rules of the Company, including those covering information, security, computer use, use of the Company equipment
- Deliberate falsification of records - by intentionally failing to comply with the Company procedures
- The committing of offences against current legislation relating to the Race Relations Act, Disability Discrimination Act, Sex Discrimination Act and the Age Discrimination Act whilst acting on behalf of the Company
- Unauthorised absence
- Fighting or assaulting another person
- Dishonesty, misappropriation of money, unauthorised removal of goods
- Using threatening or offensive language towards customers or other employees
- Bullying/Harassment
- Being in possession of Company property without authorisation
- Making oneself unfit to work by solvent abuse, drinking alcohol or taking non-prescribed drugs
- Being in unauthorised possession whilst on Company premises of illegal drugs or substances other than those prescribed for medical purposes
- Smoking on Company premises or in a Company car or whilst engaged in duties
- Obscene behaviour
- Behaviour likely to bring the Company into disrepute
- Willful and deliberate damage to Company property
- Unreasonable refusal to carry out reasonable duties or instructions. • Conviction on a criminal charge relevant to your employment with the Company
- Use for personal ends of confidential information obtained in the course of employment
- A deliberate misuse of the Company's confidential information
- A deliberate abuse of the Staff Discount Procedures
- Deliberate sale of age restricted products to those who are prohibited to buy such goods e.g. the sales of tobacco, DVD's, knives
- If a member of the management team is issued with a Restricted Sales Order under the Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008.

It should be clear to all employees that failure to observe the rules is likely to be regarded as gross misconduct and grounds for dismissal.

Appeals

You have the right to appeal against any disciplinary action taken against you. If you wish to appeal against any disciplinary action, you may do so within 5 working days in writing. You should disclose the grounds of your appeal and include any supporting evidence within your appeal letter. This should be addressed to your immediate Manager or the level higher than that carrying out the disciplinary action. We will then notify you with a date for your appeal hearing. This will be held within 14 calendar days of receiving your appeal request. You have a right to representation by a fellow employee during any appeal hearings; it is your responsibility to arrange this representation.

The purpose of an appeal hearing is for an independent Manager to assess whether the action taken against you was fair and that the correct procedures were followed. You will be given a full and fair hearing from the appropriate Manager and a final decision will be taken. You may wish to appeal if you are not satisfied with the penalty or the process, or if you have new evidence to bring to our attention.

9. Grievance Procedure

The grievance procedure can be instigated if you feel that you have a concern, problem or complaint that you want the Company to deal with. This procedure allows TwoTwenty to deal with grievances fairly, consistently and speedily to try and resolve the issue. The grievance procedure applies to all employees either currently employed or after the individual has left the company.

Where possible, we encourage you to try to resolve the matter informally with your Manager. Your Manager will investigate the facts (regardless of whether the grievance is in writing) and make every effort to achieve a satisfactory solution within 5 days.

If the problem is with your immediate Manager, then you should refer the grievance to the next level of management or another Manager in the Company.

If you are unable to settle the grievance informally or prefer to make a formal complaint, you should put your grievance in writing as soon as possible to request a hearing enabling the concern to be heard and resolved.

The stages and time-scales noted below have been fixed to ensure that grievances are dealt with quickly, however these may be extended if it is agreed upon by both parties.

Stage 1

If you have a grievance, should raise the matter with your manager immediately, either verbally or in writing. If the matter itself concerns the employees immediate manager, then the grievance should be taken to their manager.

If the manager is unable to resolve the matter at that time then a formal written grievance should be submitted. The manager should then respond within 2 working days (i.e. the managers normal working days) to the grievance unless an extended period of time is agreed upon by both parties. The response will give a full written explanation of the managers decision and who to appeal to if still aggrieved.

Stage 2

In most instances the Company would expect the managers' decision to be final and for the matter to come to a close. However, if you remain aggrieved, you can appeal against the decision of the manager concerned.

The appeal, to the manager next in line, must be made within ten working days of the original response to the employees grievance. The appeal must be in writing and contain the original formal Grievance. This manager will attempt to resolve the grievance. A formal response and full explanation will be given in writing, as will the name of the person to whom they can appeal if still aggrieved, within 7 days.

Where the 'next in line' manager at this stage is the Director with responsibility for the employees function, then the grievance should immediately progress to stage 3.

Stage 3

If the employee remains aggrieved there will be a final level of appeal to the Director responsible for the employees function. This appeal must be made in writing (see appendix 3), enclosing a copy of the original Formal Grievance, to the director within ten working days of receipt of the Stage 2 response. This Director will arrange and hear the appeal with another management representative and respond formally with a full explanation within 20 working days.

There is no further right of appeal. Where however both parties agree that there would be some merit in referring the matter to a third party for advice, conciliation or arbitration, arrangements will then be made to find a mutually acceptable third party.

Collective cases: Where issues affect a group of people, a representative of the group should be chosen, and then the steps above should be followed.
